

Biological Discourses

The Language of Science and Literature around 1900

A Postgraduate-Led Conference at St John's College, Cambridge

Arts & Humanities
Research Council

UNIVERSITY OF
CAMBRIDGE

Friday, 10 April 2015

- 10.00 Registration
- 11.00 Welcome
- 11.15 Keynote Lecture
Heike Bauer (London): Death and Inversion
- 12.00 Panel 1: Sexology
Linda Leskau (Bochum): Vegetal Perversions in Texts by Alfred Döblin
Cyd Sturgess (Sheffield): Constructing the Boundaries of Desire: Theories of Sexual 'Inversion' and Sapphic Self-Fashioning in Berlin and Amsterdam (1918-1933)
- 13.00 Lunch
- 14.00 Panel 2: The Racial Other
Aisha Nazeer (St Andrews): The Degenerate, Racial 'Other': Reading the Abject in Marryat's The Blood of the Vampire and Haggard's She
David Midgley (Cambridge): The Legacy of Haeckel in the Writings of German Anti-Racists
- 15.00 Panel 3: Infections and Infestations
Michael Wainwright (London): The Lair of the White: Stoker's Literal Projection of a Helminthic Nightmare
Marie Kolkenbrock (Cambridge): Gothic Infections: Discourses of Bacteriology and Occultism in the Literature of Prague and Vienna around 1900
- 16.00 Tea
- 16.30 Panel 4: Reproductive Issues
Michael Eggers (Cologne): A Kiss is not just a Kiss. Adalbert Stifter's Novella 'The Kiss of the Sentze' and the Reproduction of Mosses
Charlotte Woodford (Cambridge): Biology and the Romance: Eugenic Thinking in Early Twentieth-Century Fiction by Women
- 18.00 Graduate Workshop
An Opportunity to Present Research Plans and Seek Advice

Saturday, 11 April 2015

- 9.00 Panel 5: The Darwinian Legacy
Elena Borelli (New York): The Beast Within: Darwinism and Desire in the Fin de Siècle
Anahita Rouyan (Bologna): Resisting 'Excelsior Biology': H.G. Wells's The Time Machine and the Late Victorian (Mis-)Representations of Charles Darwin's Theory of Evolution
William Dodd (Birmingham): From Hitler to Darwin? Dolf Sternberger's Panorama or Views of/from the Nineteenth Century (1938) as Cultural History in the Shadow of National Socialism
- 10.30 Coffee
- 11.00 Panel 6: Psychology and Aesthetics
Tracey Loughran (Cardiff): Biology, Trauma and History: 'Shell-Shock' in British Medical Literature and Fiction, ca. 1914-1930
Sarah Cain (Cambridge): Attention and Efficiency: The Experimental Psychology of Modernism
Rey Lawson-Conquer (Oxford): 'Synaesthesia is the art of perceiving, itself': The Uses and Abuses of a Cross-Disciplinary Metaphor
- 12.30 Commentary
Angus Nicholls (London)
- 13.00 Lunch
- 14.00 Panel 7: Literary Transformations
Robert Craig (Cambridge): 'I looked for myself ... but found the world': Looking for a New Hermeneutics in Alfred Döblin's Literary Anthropologies and Biologies
Annja Neumann (Cambridge): 'Literarische Naturbetrachtung'. Arthur Schnitzler's Literary Dissection Theatre in his Ärztstück and Professor Bernhadi
- 16.00 Keynote Lecture
Staffan Müller-Wille (Exeter): Heredity around 1900
- 16.45 Tea
- 17.30 Conference Closes

Advance registration required by Friday, 27 March 2015.
Conference fees: £30 (standard rate one or both days); £25 (Friends of Germanic or Italian Studies at the IMLR); £20 (students).

Register online at <http://onlinesales.admin.cam.ac.uk/>, using the form overleaf/at www.modernlanguages.sas.ac.uk > events or www.mml.cam.ac.uk/german, or contact german@mml.cam.ac.uk (tel: 01223 335 037)

Conference organisers: Robert Craig, Ina Linge and Annja Neumann (Cambridge)

Background image: 'Chordaria flagelliformis' from Anna Atkins: Photographs of British Algae. Cyanotype Impressions Vol. 2 [British Library, item 80:11 (80)]